

Home Business

Appointments

Dr Bowman is Cardiff Medicentre's new director

Share

Jun 16 2010 by Sion Barry, Western Mail

CARDIFF MEDICENTRE has appointed Dr Mark Bowman as its new director.

Located at the University of Wales Hospital site, Cardiff Medicentre is a bio-medical business incubator established in 1992, aiming to develop businesses which benefit from the hospital location.

It is a joint venture between Cardiff Council, Cardiff University, the Welsh Assembly Government and Cardiff and Vale NHS Trust.

The appointment of Dr Bowman is a key, new position to shape the centre's future success, increasing its impact in the regional economy and establishing a high profile in the inter- national bio-medical sector.

Dr Bowman said: "I am delighted to take up this role as director of innovation, as there are so many exciting opportunities and challenges ahead.

"I'm looking forward to working with the team to develop Cardiff Medicentre into a premier bio-medical facility making a significant impact in the regional economy."

Councillor Mark Stephens, chairman of Cardiff Medicentre and executive member for Finance and Service Delivery, said: "The appointment of Dr Mark Bowman as director of innovation for the Cardiff Medicentre is a significant step forward and I'd like to welcome Mark on board. Cardiff Medicentre is a fantastic facility for new-start bio-medical businesses and I am looking forward to working with Mark in raising the profile of the centre and encouraging economic growth in a key sector of the local economy."